1. Francis Buchanan Hamilton — An Account of the Kingdom of Nepal (1819)

Primary source: Francis Hamilton, An Account of the Kingdom of Nepal, and of the Territories Annexed to this Dominion by the House of Gorkha, Edinburgh, 1819. Library of Congress item 43032470. The Library of Congress states that it is unaware of copyright or other restrictions in the World Digital Library collection and, absent such restrictions, the materials are free to use and reuse.

Exact pages to preserve: printed pp. 2–3; pp. 7–8; pp. 133–134; pp. 148–149.

Short source-faithful extract (pp. 7–8): “East from the territory called Nepal Proper, the mountains were chiefly occupied by a tribe called Kirat or Kichak.”

Supports: an early-19th-century written account identifies Kirat/Kichak as a major population occupying the eastern mountains and records information from Agam Singha, described as hereditary chief of the Kirats.

Does not by itself prove: a continuous ancient political chronology, the historicity of every Vamsavali king, or a modern ethnic/religious identity definition.

2. Yellung / Yalamba / Yalambar — chronicle-tradition evidence

Department of Archaeology / Ancient Nepal: the searched historical discussion preserves variant forms Yellung (K.), Ya'lamba, Yalambar/Yalang and discusses the first Kirata dynasty through Nepalese chronicle tradition. This is secondary scholarship about chronicles, not a contemporary inscription naming Yalambar.

Short extract: “the first of the Kiratas, Yellung (K), Ya'lambda, Yalambar”

Cross-check: later chronicle-based scholarship likewise preserves the variants. The archive therefore keeps this as chronicle/traditional-historical evidence unless an independent contemporary primary source is found.
